

An Opening

The closing of a chapter in one's life there is to see
The deeds accomplished, lives so touched, this is our destiny
We've tried to guide them by the hand, show them right from wrong
No harm to any this I pledge, in this we are so strong
Together we have formed a bond of friendship in this world
Regretted nothing, stood our ground, to never go unfurled
We gazed upon the ones so close we covered all our tracks
And formed allegiance, danger spurned, we never did look back
When came the time for those to see how much we've done for all
The judgment passed, our time has come, for we shall never fall
We are the Man and Wolf combined, for this we live in sync
The Wolf he guides those whom I touch, allow them but to think
For each there is a special one, a spirit many term
That one that watches over you to shelter and confirm
There is a time within all lives to view all as their friends
And then to open their new chapters life will now transcend
The challenges of those we meet and help them understand
Then we shall grace with love for all, as this we shall demand
