

Life Bond

When comes a time a Wolf may be, a segment of your life
To find a comfort knowing this, a time of little strife
Of problems faced between the two, is nothing more to see
Than gentle winds across the earth, for this I tell to thee
This wolf has been through much he knows, yet day-by-day I find
The pleasures of a life with you, can not be left behind
The joy of two will never match, the time so left alone
The fullness of a she-wolf there, together light has shown
We stand together strong we're told, showing we are one
And comfort those who come to us, until this effort's done
When as we settle side by side, your warmth so comforts me
Our thoughts are shared without a word, our gentleness agreed
The sharing of our bond is one, the pack is meant to share
For in our mating this we tell, together we shall swear
That we shall be as one in two, and never shall we part
These Alphas of this pack are one, together in one heart
