

New Life

This wolf he shares the time I have with those he has to meet
To share the feelings with the one as if it is to greet
Next came the time he had the chance, one possibility
Such beauty of a Raccoon fair as she did come to me
This wonder laid her paw against the right side of my face
I closed my eyes in wonderment I knew I had to brace
Her gentle touch caressed along my neck as it did glide
And rests upon my shoulder simply stop as I did slide
My arm around her waiting form I pulled her to me tight
To gently place a kiss upon her forehead as I might Show her that our time together this just has to be
Then helped her down to lay beside her she then did agree
Between us we would share ourselves, as lovers would embrace
To be within each other's form as if to leave that trace
Of one within the others soul our bond of love would yield
The knowing that together formed, we have now revealed
A bond of love so strong as ours, shall never end or crave
As now new lives have shown themselves, to grow to be so brave
We'll wait to see how time will show, the wonders that we start
For in the end as we grow old, our souls shall never part
